THE FOREIGN POLICY OF IRAN, 1500-1941:

A Developing Nation in World Affairs

by Rouhollah K. Ramazani

Professor of Government and Foreign Affairs, University of Virginia.
6 X 9 1/4, xviii, 330 pp., 1966. $7.50.

This study is the first systematic description and critical analysis of Iran's foreign policy. Mr. Ramazani examines Iran's traditional narrow foreign policy, the beginning of transition, as marked by the Constitutional Revolution in 1905, and the country's recent attempts to modernize its political system. He emphasizes the force of Iran's determined adherence to traditional patterns and demonstrates how this has created the gulf today between the objectives and the means of its foreign policy. Winner of the 1964 prize of the American Association for Middle East Studies as "the most distinguished contribution to contemporary Middle East Scholarship," The Foreign Policy of Iran contains valuable empirical data documenting the struggles of this developing nation amidst the turbulence of international power politics. In this volume Mr. Ramazani provides a coherent basis for further study of emergent nations and reasons for the considerable influence they exert now not only in the United Nations but also in world politics.

THE MIDDLE EAST AND THE EUROPEAN COMMON MARKET

by Rouhollah K. Ramazani

6 X 9, xxii, 152 pp., 1964. $3.75.

The Middle East and the European Common Market treats a subject hitherto overlooked in the confusion surrounding the operations of the EEC. The author discusses the probable effects of the Common Market on various exports of Middle Eastern countries such as oil, grain, vegetables, fruits, cotton, and tobacco. The author also examines the possible effects of British entry into the EEC and the reactions of the Middle Eastern countries toward the European Economic Community. He finds, paradoxically perhaps, that the countries most likely to be hard hit are the least antagonistic to the Market; indeed, they are trying to associate themselves with it. On the other hand, those countries which stand to be comparatively unhurt, such as Egypt, are bitterly opposed. Mr. Ramazani concludes that the EEC countries must adopt policies designed to forward the general welfare and that Arabs should realize that they too must accept the responsibility of cooperation with the West.

THE ECONOMIC HISTORY OF THE MIDDLE EAST, 1800-1914

Edited and with Introductions by CHARLES ISSAWI

These sixty-two selections systematically trace the economic transformation of the Ottoman Empire, Iraq, Syria, Arabia, Egypt, and the Sudan from "medieval" to "modern." Half the readings are newly translated from French, Arabic, German, Russian, Turkish, Hebrew and Italian—many are published here for the first time. This excellent review covers: integration into international commerce, investment of foreign capital, development of transportation, transition from subsistence to market-oriented agriculture, population growth, and the establishment of modern industries.
